IN THE BEGINNING WAS THOUGHT.

From the first stone hand axes to steam engines to computers, airplanes and nanotechnology, the fundamental principle underlying all the achievements of civilization is the same: the transcending of biological restrictions by means of the intellect. The intellect is the single, determining axiom that has shaped humanity's history from its beginnings to the present. It is the source of all knowledge, the motor of innovation and the driving force behind progress. Reason is also the foundation of aesthetic perception. Every act of comprehension comprises a judgement, be it about causality, quality, relations or suitability – and an aesthetic component is inherent in every judgement. Therefore, the union of utility and beauty is the highest goal of the human creative will.
